If you know ColdFusion and love doing tech support and like the idea of living in the heart of Europe then maybe this job in Germany with my friend David Tattersall of Intergral would be interesting. I visited their office over the summer and it is a great place to work and live. And only a short train or car ride from many cool places in Germany, France, and Italy so you can take advantage of the 24 vacation days per year! (That is on top of the 12 national holidays they have)

Note: the office language is English – it is not required that you speak German to work at Intergral. Assistance with relocation will be provided. For US applicant's they will also provide assistance with getting the appropriate work VISA allowing you to work in EUROPE.
