

Hal Helms vs. Simon Horwith - Celebrity Death Match

Posted At : February 1, 2007 12:00 AM | Posted By : Christian Ready
Related Categories: podcast

Frameworks-Who Needs Them? Why do some people swear by them while others swear at them? What's all the fuss about? Hal Helms is the pioneer of the popular Mach-II and Fusebox frameworks, and Simon Horwith has, after several outspoken public comments on the subject, managed to become the unofficial opponent of framework use.

This is a steel cage match. Audience participation is encouraged, the fight... err... umm... debate, will be limited to 10 rounds, and there will be no hitting below the belt (we'll see about that). But remember, at the end: There Can Be Only One.

- Direct link to .mp3

Add this blog's RSS feed to your podcast player!